

I am very concerned about a few giant media corporations owning the huge share of the media. Public airwave belongs to the people and the problem is media companies that own the TV and Radio stations do not have public interest in their agenda. Their most and foremost agenda is profit and return of investments. On the other hands, diversity is good and healthy for democracy. We should have many different points of view as possible. I think to allow big media corporations to own everything is to undermine our democracy.

Philip Nguyen